

Migration	The movement of people from one location to another.
International Migration	Migration between countries.
Internal Migration	Migration within a country.
Rural-Urban Migration	The movement from the countryside into cities.
Voluntary Migration	When people choose to migrate.
Forced Migration	When people have to migrate, normally because their life is in danger e.g. war or natural disaster.
Seasonal Migration	When people migrate for a particularly season. This is usually for work and may be for a harvest season or a ski season.
Economic Migration	When people move because of their work, usually to find a better paid job or a promotion.
Diaspora	Citizens from a different country that hold onto their traditional identity e.g. food, language, clothes, etc.
Expatriates	Migrants who live in another country by choice for either economic or quality of life improvement
Guest workers	Someone who is invited to work in a foreign country. Guest workers are given contracts and visas for a limited period, often only one or two years.
Human Trafficking	The smuggling of people across international borders. Sometimes people pay to be trafficked to try and get into another country and other times people are abducted and trafficked against their will.
Host Country	The country which accepts the migrants.
Country of Origin	The country from which migrants leave.

